PEACE IN THIRTY DAYS

Father of Provisional President of the Insurgents Makes Startling Statement—Still Securing Troops

For the Army.

El Paso, March 28.—(Guerrilla warfare has been formally abandoned by the Mexican insurgents, according to the decree of Francisco I. Madero made public here today.The decree organizes the entire republic of Mexico into seven groups of states, each group to be known as a war zone and the insurgents in each group to constitute a corps.The army ranks and promise of a law giving pensions to widows and children are announced.Madero becomes "supreme head of the insurgent army." One of the objects of abolishing the guerrilla warfare is to induce foreign countries to recognize the government of Madero.

Madero's Gathers.

San Antonio, March 28.—Francisco
I. Madero Sr. and Gustavo Madero, respectively father and brother of the Mexican insurgent leader, Francisco
I. Madero Jr., arrived here today.They said the rebellion was purely a personal affair, but impression prevails that matters of moment are to be considered in connection with the peace proposals.

Peace At Once.

Francisco I. Madero, Sr., father of the insurgent leader today declared that peace in Mexico is possible within thirty days and probably within ten days. "Himself, his son, Alfonso, and his son Gustavo, he said, would be the revolutionary representatives.

The Plans.

Madero said it was intended to abolish the office of vice presidency, the functions of that position to fall upon the new foreign minister, De La Barra. Diaz will continue as president three or four months, then resign on plea of age.

De La Barra.

De La Barra will then succeed to the presidency and call an election.
Madero thought that Finance Minister Limantour would be the administration candidate for president.

More Orders.

In the meeting of Col. Land, adjutant general of the first maneuver division was today notified by the war department that every regiment division must immediately be recruited to full war strength and prepared for an indefinite stay in the field.

Another Diaz Rumor.

A widespread rumor that President Diaz of Mexico, but later denied in all quarters caused excitement among army officials. The rumor however, it was declared served to indicate which way the wind is blowing.

All Were Massacred.

El Paso, Texas, March 28.—Mail confirms the report that the revolutionists slaughtered every federal official of the town of Chihuahua when they took the town. All were placed in a jail and shot.A telephone operator alone escaped.
He fell with others beneath the dead and crawled out twelve hours later alive and made his way barefooted to Chihuahua, forty miles away.PRESENTED A DRAMA

INCREASE IN ARMYArmy Officers Say Number of Men Enlisted Will Be Small Compared With Number of Applications

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, March 28.—Though some recruiting officers report big increases in applications for enlistment in the army since the beginning of the military demonstration on the Texas border, army officers predict that the actual increase in the army will be small.They base this prediction upon the small percentage of applicants who are accepted from among the vast number applying. During the last fiscal year, only 14 per cent of those applying were finally enlisted in the military service. In 58 main recruiting stations, 91,121 men applied for enlistment, of which 78,777 were rejected. Of the 13,344 accepted at the recruiting stations, 2,887 were later rejected at the recruiting depots. These figures do not include the vast number, probably several hundred thousand, it is estimated, who were rejected without examination by the recruiting officers at all the stations.
These include men of obvious physical defects, men plainly over or over-age, and others who bear the stamp of immaturity or imbecility. No record is kept of these rejections.It has been the experience of the army recruiting officers that applications for enlistment are increased by any series of events which bring the army into prominence, especially if it seems likely that there will be opportunity for field service. The most extensive increases, however, appear when volunteers are called out. Not only are civilians more attracted to volunteer organizations than the regulars, but also, a greater proportion are accepted, because the examination of applicants is not nearly so rigid and searching. The regular recruiting officers are experts, trained to detect every imperfection in the physique or health of applicants.THOUSANDS IN WANT

IS ON IN TURKEYGrand Vizir Hakkı Paşa Is Making His Last Stand Against Young Turks and Martial Law
May Prevail.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Constantinople, via Philadelphia, March 28.—Grand Vizir Hakkı Paşa is making his last stand against the Young Turks. There is every prospect that the political struggle between them will culminate soon in an armed clash. Seemingly the only thing that can prevent it is a military dictatorship.Hakkı Paşa is determined to run Turkey along orthodox governmental lines. The Young Turks, an irresponsible secret organization, are resolved to make him act as they dictate. One after another, they have forced three members of Hakkı's cabinet out of office. Recently they demanded Foreign Minister Hakkı Paşa's head.
Hakkı refused it. The Young Turks warned him that he must yield or go down. Hakkı defied them and is still holding his ground.Turkey really has two capitals today —Constantinople, the seat of the nominal government, and Salonika, headquarters of the Young Turkish Committee. Hakkı is not strong enough to crush the Young Turks. The Young Turks have not yet mustered enough strength to overthrow Hakkı.
The position, however, is impossible.
One side or the other will have to strike or anarchy will result.If civil war is averted by the declaration of a military dictatorship, the dictator will inevitably be War Minister Chekrek Paşa. Chekrek does not want to be dictator. He lacks ambition and also suffers from an incurable disease. He can, however, be dictator if he chooses. The army is devoted to him. Even the Young Turks among the officers prefer Chekrek to the Young Turkish Committee. Criminals may favor Chekrek to accept the responsibility from which he shrinks. Personally he will undoubtedly be a good ruler, but he will not will not constitutionalism in Turkey, for Gen. Chekrek has no sympathy with popular government or with parliamentary institutions.LEGAL BATTLE TO the United States District Court today Judge Swann listened to arguments on the application of Godfrey M. Hyman of New York for an injunction against the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company to prevent its merger with the Osceola company. The petitioner asked that the proposed consolidation be decreed void, as an attempt to form an unlawful trust or monopoly, and combination of capital in restraint of trade. Mr. Hyman, who has been prominently identified with the management of the Osceola properties, declares that if the merger is carried out, it will work an

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., March 28.—That the resolution calling upon the United States senate to unseat Senator Ike Stephenson will not be reported out until many of the important "platform" measures have been passed, was the declaration today of Senator John J. Blaine, chairman of the senate judiciary committee. At the recent hearing on the resolution, no one appeared to oppose it, and the committee has not yet considered it in executive session. There is no intention of accelerating the resolution or of temporizing, but it is possible that the pharmaceutical may be altered, but without changing the ultimate purpose. So many conflicting and unauthorized reports concerning the status of the resolution have been published that Senator Blaine is anxious that the public know just what has been done in the matter.PROPOSED BUREAU

INCLUDE JUDGES?This Question Has Arisen In Drafting of the Proposed Constitutional Amendment.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., March 28.—Shall the recall in Wisconsin include the judges? This question is being actually in connection with the drafting of the proposed amendment to the constitution in compliance with the republican state platform, and investigation of the entire subject of the recall has been instituted by Senator John J. Blaine, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, upon whom has been placed the task of getting out the resolution. Mindful, apparently, of the national difference of opinion of the question of including judges in the recall, legislative leaders have been chary in their comments on the proposition, and therefore Senator Blaine is making inquiries everywhere.Although the sentiment of those who have the matter in charge seems to be against providing for the direct influence of legislation without the legislature intervening, there is also a noticeable demand for the inclusion of this provision in the resolution being prepared by the assembly committee on constitutional amendments. The contention of those opposed to the plan has been that it always should be possible for any citizen to secure the introductory of a bill through one of the 133 members of the legislature.
Some of the members believe, however, that it should be possible at least to initiate legislation by petition to the legislature, and others go further and argue that the people should be allowed by petition of a relatively large percentage to file proposed laws with the secretary of state, to be submitted to the people.ALLEGED SWINDLER

REDUCTION OF RATE
FOR CARRYING OILDecision Which Will Lower Freight Rates on Oil in Wisconsin Given By Rate Commission

Yesterday.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., March 28.—Reduction of freight rates on oil within Wisconsin is ordered against the principal railroads operating in this state by a decision of the Wisconsin railroad commission yesterday afternoon.
The commission decided concurrently in the case of the National Refining company of La Crosse against the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago,
Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago,
Burlington & Quincy, the La Crosse & Southeastern, and the Green Bay and Western railway companies, and the case of the Bartles-Maguire Oil company of Milwaukee against the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Du-chene, South Shore & Atlantic, the Great Northern, the Illinois Central,
the Kewanee, Green Bay & Western, the La Crosse & Southwestern, the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, and the Wisconsin & Michigan railway companies.The cases involved less than carload rates on certain classes of petroleum products within Wisconsin.
The petition of the National Refining company complained that the third class rates in effect from La Crosse to Wisconsin points are unjust and unreasonable and subject the company to great loss and disadvantage, and that the fourth class rates would be reasonable for such service. The petition of the Bartles-Maguire company made practically the same allegations as to the third class rates in effect from Milwaukee to Wisconsin points, and suggested that something less than fourth class rates would be reasonable.In its decision the commission concluded:"The facts presented and analyzed here have led us to the conclusion that the rates for petroleum products in this state should not exceed the rates which are now the rates of charge for articles that come in class four for the western classification. If because of other proceedings it should become necessary to in some way reduce class four rates, then the question involved by these proceedings will receive further consideration."It is ordered that the respondent railway companies discontinue their present classification and rates on petroleum products and place those articles in class 4 of the classification and transported at the rates which apply to fourth class freight.STATE BOARD WAS IN

COURT OPENED AT MONROE YESTERDAY

Important Cases Are on Calendar for Spring Session of Circuit Court at Monroe.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Monroe, March 28.—Circuit court was opened here yesterday afternoon by Judge George Grimm, at which time thirty-five applications for citizenship papers were heard. At 7:30 last evening memorial exercises were held for the late P. J. Clawson. The Atwood case and Mahan vs. C. M. & St. L. Ry. were placed on the court calendar. The two criminal cases were dismissed. The first jury will be called in the trial of the case of M. C. Gettings et al. vs. Ed. Nelson and James Doherty. The case was tried at the last term of court but the jury disagreed. The case of Janet Jennings against members of the city council and Thorpe vs. Osborn will follow and next Monday at 1:30 o'clock is the time set for the case of Mons Larson vs. Emil Vogell. The case of Schwagler vs. Citizen's bank of New Glarus is also on the calendar.

Fear Was Felt.
Much apprehension was felt here by friends and relatives for Mrs. P. A. Shriner and Miss Little Newman, who left here last week on a trip to Miami, Florida. They stopped enroute at Atlanta and had intended to leave there for Jacksonville on the Dixie Flyer which was wrecked Saturday. However, they did not take the flyer on account of Miss Newman's unwillingness to travel by night. Telegrams of inquiry were sent to Atlanta and Jacksonville from here inquiring as to their whereabouts. It was found they were not in the wreck. A letter received by Mr. Shriner stated the ladies expected to be in Jacksonville some time Saturday and the fact that they were still in Atlanta, Sunday morning, shows they were delayed by the wreck.

Schools Close.
The graded schools and high school close here Friday afternoon for the spring vacation of one week. The training school closes one week later. A number of teachers and pupils from neighboring schools are here to visit the schools during their vacations.

Personal.
Mrs. Rachel Leake is making a visit with relatives in Lena and Warren. Mrs. Amelia Schaud, who recently underwent an operation in Mercy hospital in Janesville, has returned to her home here.

MEDICAL MEN MEET IN THE CITY TODAY

Members of County Societies of Third Council District of Wisconsin Guests of Rock County Society.

About fifty physicians representing the medical societies of five counties in the southern part of the state were in session in the assembly room of the city hall in this city today. The morning session, which commenced at 9 o'clock, and afternoon session, was called by the Rock County Medical society and the doctors who are present are from the counties forming what is known as the southern district of Wisconsin. Rock, Green, Columbia, Dane and Sauk are the counties in this district.

Physicians from Madison, Stoughton, Portage, Beloit, and other places in the district were here as guests of the Rock county men. The morning session opened at 9 o'clock and lasted until 12:30, at which time all present were taken to the Grand hotel for dinner by the members of the Rock county society.

Eight papers were read during the morning session. The papers were of special merit without an exception and much beneficial discussion was called forth following each talk, and a keen interest was displayed by all present. At the morning meeting quite a few doctors from Rockford were present and listened to the papers and discussions. The presiding officer in the gathering was the president of the local society, Dr. G. W. Elford.

"Diagnosis of Pelvic Infection" was the title of a very interesting paper by Dr. E. W. Van Kirk of this city. Discussions were also headed by Drs. J. F. Pomeroy and T. W. Nuzum of Janesville. The society was particularly fortunate in obtaining Dr. E. H. Ochsner of Chicago for the occasion and also Prof. Louis Kahlenberg of the University of Wisconsin. Both these men read papers dealing with subjects in which they have made a specialty.

Following is a list of the papers which were read during the sessions of the day:

PLAY TONIGHT FOR THE STATE TITLE

Lakota Cardinals Will Meet Company F Team of Portage in That City.

Tonight in the armory of Company F of Portage, the Lakota Cardinals basketball team of this city will battle for supremacy with the Company F squad. The basketball title for the state of Wisconsin is at stake and the contest promises to be one of the hardest in which the local players have engaged. It will be a spectacular one for the Portage fans and the Janesville rooters who accompanied the local five as the two best teams in the state are matched against each other. Portage, earlier in the season defeated Janesville here, by a very close margin. Later Portage lost to the Hamilton club of Two Rivers, Wis., while the Two Rivers quintet was beaten here.

The Janesville team did not carry its regular lineup to Portage, two of the number being forced out by physical disability, and a third was unable to get away at this time. Their places will be filled by players from Madison, who have taken part in matches in this city. The lineup tonight for Janesville will probably be: Cunningham and Murphy, forwards, Adams, center, O'Connell and Youngman, guards. Accompanying the players were: Manager Will Lampton, who may put on his uniform if it is also lately necessary; Walter Carle, who will act as the Janesville official; Ray Mac Donald, Will Shoemaker, and Oscar Yahn.

BRODHEAD.

Brodhead, March 28.—Miss Mary Gibbons of Janesville spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Barnes. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hill of Beloit were Brodhead visitors on Sunday on account of the funeral of their cousin, T. J. Adams, which took place here at 11:30.

Mrs. Homer Menor and son, Harold, of Chicago, spent Sunday in Brodhead with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Farmer.

Miss Nettie Henry went to Rockford, Monday, to visit her sister, Mrs. Mary Freedland.

Mrs. C. A. Steele and little son, Robert, left on Monday for La Crosse where they will spend some time visiting relatives.

A marsh fire about twelve miles south of this city last Saturday burned up 40 or 50 tons of hay and an empty building.

Mrs. Ed. Grenawalt and baby of Albany came to Brodhead, Monday, for a short stay with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Boyles spent Saturday and Sunday in Monticello with their son, Tommy, and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. John Losey and daughter, Miss Maude, were guests of relatives in Brooklyn over Sunday, returning Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Gardner spent Monday in Janesville.

Mrs. A. Barnes returned from Madison on Monday where she has been for some weeks.

Winter weather and snow storms prevailed on Monday. Farm work will be at a standstill for the present.

IS GIVEN HEAVY SENTENCE

Indiana Youth Severely Punished for Attempted Criminal Assault on School Teacher.

Terro Haute, Ind., March 28.—Otto Griffith was sent to prison for from two to fourteen years for attempted criminal assault on Bernice Laughlin on a highway as she was leaving a suburban school where she was a teacher. He was but two months past sixteen years of age, also his case would have been a case for a probation officer. Neighbors testified to his good reputation but the young woman's story of the struggle impressed the jury. A former teacher was killed by a negro named Ward, who assaulted her, and he was taken from the Terro Haute jail and lynched.

Columbus Dynamite to Prison.

Columbus, O., March 28.—William Cavanaugh, the first of four alleged dynamiters to be found guilty, was sentenced to ten years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge Rogers. Cavanaugh was found guilty of placing dynamite on the street car tracks.

Second Ward Candidates for Aldermanic Honors

James W. Scott.

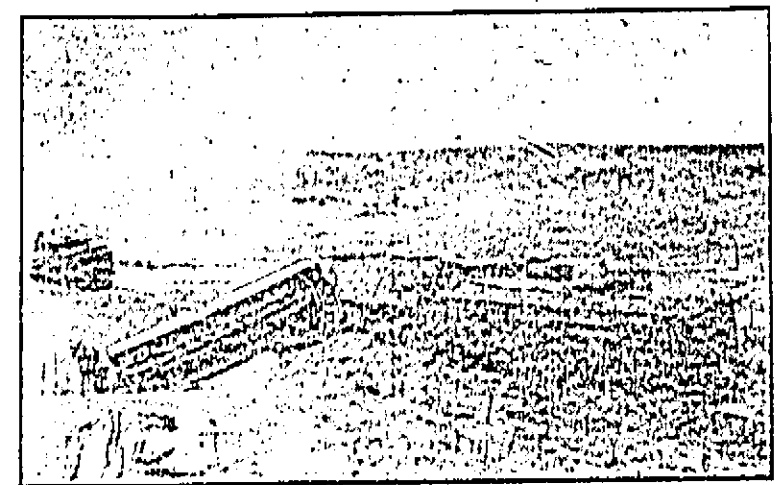

James Scott, present alderman, and the republican nominee for alderman in the Second ward, is seeking election for the second time. He has made a good alderman during his two years in office and has stood for the improvement of the city. As a member of the various committees he has been most useful. His opponent, Edward Connell, was also his opponent in the contest two years ago.

Edward Connell.

Edward Connell, the democratic nominee for alderman in the Second ward, has twice before been elected to this office by the voters of the ward and twice defeated. He was first elected in 1903, defeating Tracy Brown, the Municipal League candidate, and in 1905 he defeated John Peters. In 1907 he was defeated by John D. O'Hara for the nomination and in 1909 he was nominated but defeated at the polls by Jas. W. Scott.

WRECK ON ST. PAUL ROAD NEAR BROWN IN WHICH CAR OF DYNAMITE WAS OVERTURNED. CAR MARKED X CONTAINED 32,000 POUNDS OF THE EXPLOSIVE.

The above is a picture of the wreck on the St. Paul road near Brown in which a car containing dynamite was overturned. The 32,000 pounds of dynamite was overturned and badly smashed without causing an explosion. The car next to the engine and marked X, was the one which contained the explosive.

Addition to English Museum.
A poisonous spider, 4 in. in width, of the variety which feeds on humming birds, has been presented to the Guildford, England, museum by a local grocer's assistant, who found it on his apron. It is believed to have been imported in a crate of bananas.

Fifield Refutes Mistaken Idea

The following plain statement is made by James Fifield, republican candidate for Mayor refuting several campaign reports that have been circulated. In this connection it might be stated that Mr. Fifield recently refused to make any bid on five hundred barrels of cement to be used by the city owing to the fact that the delivery was to be made after the coming election. He said: "There being an impression among some people that some benefit might accrue to me if elected to the office of Mayor, through the sale of material to the city, I wish to state that under no circumstances would I allow my lumber yard to sell anything of any kind to the city during my term of office."

NARROWLY ESCAPED A BAD RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Two Clinton Men Escaped Injury on the Main Street of the Village Yesterday Afternoon.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Clinton, March 28.—A team of horses hitched to a buggy started to run away on Main street in the business section yesterday afternoon, but the driver had presence of mind and strength enough to guide them for Crabtree's livery barn doorway. In making the turn the buggy tipped over on the cement sidewalk, throwing the occupants, two men, out, but very fortunately neither was injured beyond a good shaking up and a bad scare. The buggy was damaged slightly but was a very fortunate ending to what looked like a perilous situation. The top being up, the men had no chance to jump out.

FOUND DEAD AFTER NEARLY TWO WEEKS

Thomas J. Cuckow, Former Resident of Rock County, Found Dead at Home in Dell Rapids, South Dakota—Was Buried Sunday.

Thomas J. Cuckow, for many years a resident of Rock county, and who moved to South Dakota in 1888, was found dead in his home in the city of Dell Rapids, South Dakota, last Wednesday, March 22. Mr. Cuckow lived at his home alone and the last time he was seen was on the morning of March 11. When the mail at his door was found to accumulate, it was deemed advisable to investigate. An officer accompanied by a witness entered the home which was unlocked, and the house was found to be filled with gas. Mr. Cuckow was found sitting in a chair in the dining room, naked except for his undershirt, and one of the burners of the gas stove was found open and death was due to the fumes.

It was apparent that the deceased had taken a bath for a wash basin was nearby and clean clothes were on a chair. The first thought was of suicide, but upon further investigation it was decided that death came from inhaling the gas which had been accidentally turned on. The deceased was subject to heart trouble and it is thought that he was taken with a spell when about to light the gas.

Mr. Cuckow was 72 years of age and was a brother of S. F. Cuckow of Avalon. He was born in New York City and came to this county, settling in the town of Bradford, where he resided for many years. He moved to South Dakota in 1888 and was very successful in farming and other business interests there. Friends of the family here will regret to hear of his death. S. F. Cuckow of Avalon was present at the funeral which was held out Sunday and the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Dell Rapids.

Besides his brother at Avalon, Mr. Cuckow left two sisters, Mrs. H. C. Cooke of Chicago and Mrs. Benjamin Fullagar of Pennyan, N. Y. His wife preceded him in death some years but he left one daughter, Mrs. Mattie Thornber of Dell Rapids, and three sons, Fred W., an attorney at Brookings; Leroy E., at Plagier, Colo.; and Clayton J., at Minneapolis.

CHALLENGE ISSUED TO FACULTY TEAM

Seniors Have Made Offer to High School Faculty to Engage in Basketball Contest Soon.

Some time within a week or two will occur the annual senior-faculty basketball game. For the past few years the seniors have challenged the faculty to this game and the seniors have never lost the game and so have an excellent precedent to back them this year. The faculty are nevertheless game and it is rumored that they intend to trim the seniors this year. But as this has been their time every year before the game the seniors do not feel very uneasy. It is also a known fact that Prof. Rahr, Munroe, Knutson and Vivien have been regularly attending the Y. M. C. A. classes for practice and that even Prof. Ruhl has been seen in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

An exciting game is assured and there is no doubt but that the seniors will have a hard time.

PAID LIGHT FINE IN COURT MONDAY

Ignorance of Recent Law With Regard To Sale of Oil Co. L. A. Babcock, Local Agent, $5 and Costs.

Ignorance is not accepted as an excuse in the eyes of the law and for his lack of knowledge of the state laws with regard to the sale of oil L. A. Babcock, local agent for the Standard Oil Company, paid a fine of $5 and costs in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Babcock was arraigned on a complaint of H. J. Matcress, Elberton, state oil inspector for this district, charging Babcock with selling kerosene for power purposes without first having it tested. Babcock pleaded guilty and on motion of District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, Judge Fifield levied the minimum fine.

The state statutes require that all used for power purposes must be tested but if sold for use in painting the test is not required. Recently Babcock purchased a carload of kerosene which he had been retelling for painting purposes. He was unaware, however, of the change that had been made in the law and when a Milton customer desired the kerosene for power purposes, Babcock sold it to him. The case was brought into court to serve largely as an example to other dealers in oil. Mr. Matcress is vigilant in his efforts to see that the statutes are obeyed to the letter, further violations will result in more severe dealing with the offenders.

ANNUAL CONTEST ON FRIDAY EVENING

Medal Contest Will Be On Friday Evening—Whitewater Has Withdrawn From League Which Effects Local School.

Friday evening of this week will occur the annual school contest for the Mahoney, Lovejoy, Loomis and Borden medals, given for poetry, oratory, declamatory and extemporaneous speaking respectively. These medals were last year won by Cunningham, 12; Yahn, 11; Humphrey, 12; and Hyde, 10, respectively. In the district and extemporaneous medals are to be contested for a new speaker, as Miss Humphrey is not in the light and Hyde graduated last year. But in the other two events, namely poetry and oratory, Cunningham and Yahn will fight to hold the honors against several strong opponents.

Last fall Whitewater high school, who was a member of the Rock County declamatory and oratorical league, dropped out and as a result this league has only three members: Evansville, Deloit and Jansville. One of the rules laid down by the state board on this work is that any two or more high schools may form themselves into a league and send their winner to the district contest. But in the district the Whitewater Normal school the District committee decided that four schools would be considered a league and so there is some question of Jansville's representative or any other winner of the Rock County League entering more than a league contest with Evansville and Deloit. Undoubtedly the matter will have to be decided by the state committee as the two rules stand opposed to each other. For the past fourteen years Jansville has been in this line of work and it will come hard to give it up.

Are you the lady who is going to get the Caloric Fireless Cook Stove? Here for an idea, or are you going to get the $5 prize, or the $3 prize or the $2 prize. Four prizes for an idea. Every woman can try for them. Read the advertisement on page 9.

Masks and Faces.

Like many a wiser and a better man, Amber was able upon occasion to change his mind without entertaining serious misgivings as to his stability of purpose. Therefore, on second thought, he elected to journey Indiaward via the Muez canal rather than by the western route. Rutton's instructions had been explicit upon one point: Amber was to enter India only by the port of Calcutta. In referring to this the Virginian lost several days waiting in London for the fortnightly P. & O. boat for Calcutta; a delay which might have been obviated by taking the overland route to Brindley, connecting there with the weekly P. & O. boat for Bombay, from which latter point Calcutta could have been quickly reached by rail across the Indian peninsula.

Now Quain's letter to Labertouche went by this quicker route and so anticipated Amber's arrival at the capital of India by about a week; during all of which time it languished unread.

A nice young English boy in Mr. Labertouche's employ received and stamped it with the date of delivery and put it away with the rest of the incoming correspondence in a substantial-looking safe. After which he returned to his desk in the ante-room and resumed his study of the law; which he pursued comfortably enough with a cigarette in his mouth, his chair tilted back, and his feet gently but firmly implanted upon the fair printed pages of an open volume of Blackstone. His official duties, otherwise, seemed to consist solely in imparting to all and sundry the information that Mr. Labertouche was "somewhere up in the Mofussil, hunting bugs—I don't know exactly where."

Precisely why Mr. Labertouche maintained his office was a matter for casual conjecture to his wide circle of acquaintances; although it is not unlikely that, were he the subject of discussion, the bulk of the wonder expressed would be inspired by his unreasonable preference for Calcutta as a place of residence.

Now upon the morning of the day that found the steamship Poonah nuzzling up the Hooghly's dirty yellow flood, Mr. Labertouche's clerk arrived at the Dhurumtollah street office at the usual hour; which, in the absence of his employer, was generally between 11 o'clock and noon. Having asserted and disposed of the morning's mail, he donned his office coat, sat down, thumbed through Blackstone until he found two perfectly clean pages, opened the volume at that place, tipped back his chair, and with every indication of an untroubled conscience imposed his feet upon the book and began the day's labors with a cigarette.

Presently he became aware that an especially dirty and travel-worn Attit mendicant had squatted down across the way, in the full glare of sunlight, and was composing himself for one of those apparently purposeless and interminable vigils peculiar to his vocation. Reminded their drooping lashes the eyes of the clerk brightened. But he did not move. Neither did the Attit mendicant.

In the course of the next half-hour the clerk consumed two cigarettes and entertained a visitor in the person of a dapper little Greek coffee-dealer from the Lal bazaar, who left behind him an invitation to Mr. Labertouche to call and inspect some scarabs in which he had professed an interest. It was quite a fresh importation, averred the Greek; the clerk was to be careful to remember that.

When he had gone the clerk made a note of it. Then, glancing out of the window, he became aware that the Attit mendicant, for some reason disinterested, was preparing to move on. Yawning, the clerk resumed his seat, and went out to lunch, carelessly leaving the door unlocked, and the memorandum of the Greek's invitation exposed upon his blotter. When he returned at three o'clock, the door of Mr. Labertouche's private office was ajar and that gentleman was at his desk. The memorandum was, however, gone.

Mr. Labertouche was in the process of opening and reading a ten-days' accumulation of correspondence, an occupation which he suspended temporarily to call his clerk in and receive his report. This proved to be a tolerably lengthy session, for the clerk, whose name appeared to be Frank, demonstrated his command of a surprising memory. Without notes he enumerated the callers at the office day by day from the time when Labertouche had left for the Mofussil with his specimen box and the rest of his bug-hunting paraphernalia; naming those known to his employer, minutely describing all others, eyes repeating their words with almost phonographic fidelity.

Labertouche listened intently, without interrupting, abstractedly tapping his desk with a paper-cutter. At the end he said "Thank you," with a dry, preoccupied air; and resumed consideration of his letters. These seemed to interest him little; one after the other he gave to his clerk, saying: "File that," or "Answer that soundly." Two he set aside for his personal disposition, and these he took up again after the clerk had been dismissed. The first he read and reconsidered for a long time; then crumpled it up and, drawing to him a small tray of hammered brass, dropped the wadded paper upon it and touched a match to it, thoughtfully poking the blazing sheets with his paper-cutter until they were altogether reduced to ashes.

Quain's was the second letter. Having merely glanced at the heading and signature, Labertouche had reserved the rather formidable document—for Quain had written fully—as probably of great importance, to be dealt with at his absolute leisure. But as he read his expression grew more and more serious and perturbed. Finishing the last page he turned back to the first and went over it a second time with much deliberation and frequent pauses, apparently memorizing portions of its contents. Finally he said, "Hum-m!" inacutely and rang for Frank.

"He left New York by the Lusitania, eh?" said Mr. Labertouche aloud. The clerk entering interrupted his soliloquy. "Bring me, please," he said, "Bradshaw, the News—and the latest P. & O. schedule." And when Frank had returned with the articles, he directed him to go at once and enquire at Government house the whereabouts of Col. Dominick James Farrell, and further to search the hotels of Calcutta for a Miss Farrell, or for information concerning her. "Have this for me tonight—come to the bungalow at seven," he said. "And . . . I shall probably not be at the office again for several days."

"Insects?" enquired the clerk.

"Insects," affirmed Mr. Labertouche gravely.

"In the Mofussil?"

"There or thereabouts, Frank."

"Yes, sir. I presume you don't feel the need of a capable assistant yet?"

"Not yet, Frank," said Labertouche kindly. "Be patient. Your time will come; you're doing famously now."

"Thank you."

"Good afternoon. Lock the door as you leave."

Immediately that he found himself alone, Labertouche made of Quain's letter a second burnt offering to prejudice upon the tray of hammered brass.

This matter attended to, he lost himself in Bradshaw and the Poonah & Oriental Steamship-company's list of sailings; from which he derived enlightenment. "He was to come direct," mused Labertouche. "In that case he'll have waited over in London for the Poonah." He turned to the copy of the Indian Daily News which lay at his elbow, somewhat anxiously consulting its shipping news. Under the heading of "Due this Day" he discovered the words: "Poonah, London—Calcutta—Strait Settlements." And his face lengthened with concern.

"That's short notice," he said. "Lucky I got back today—uncommon lucky! . . . Still I may be mistaken." But the surmise failed to comfort him.

He drew a sheet of paper on which there was no letter head to him and began to write, composing deliberately and with great care.

The building in which his offices were located stood upon a corner; at either end of the long corridor on the upper floor, upon which the various offices opened, were stairways, one descending to Dhurumtollah street, the other to a side street little better than an alley. It may be considered significant that, whereas Labertouche himself was not seen either to enter or to leave the building at any time that day, an Attit mendicant did enter from Dhurumtollah street shortly after Frank had gone to lunch—and disappeared forthwith; while, in the dusk of evening, a slim Eurasian boy with a clerical air left by the stairs to the alley.

CHAPTER VIII.

First Steps.

Forward on the promenade deck of the Poonah, in the shadow of the bridge, Amber stood with both elbows on the rail, dividing his somewhat perturbed attention between a noisy lot of lecherous stewards, deckhands, and native third-class passengers in the bows below, and the long lines of Skukur Island, just then slipping past on the starboard beam.

Up to the day that the Poonah had sailed from Tilbury dock, London, from the time he had left Quain among the sand dunes of Long Island, he had not been conscious of any sort of espionage upon his movements. But from the hour that the Poonah with its miscellaneous ship's company, white, yellow, brown, and black, had warped out into the Thames, he had felt he was being watched—had realized it instinctively, having nothing definite whereon to base his feeling. He was neither timorous nor given to conjuring up shapes of terror from the depths of a nervous imagination; the sensation of being under the surveillance of unseen, prying eyes was unmistakable. Yet he had tried to reason himself out of the belief—after taking all reasonable precautions, such as never letting the photograph of Sophia Farrell out of his possession and keeping the token next his skin, in a channels bag that nestled beneath his arm, swinging from a leather cord round his neck. It was quite conceivable that that jewel, intrinsically invaluable, was badly wanted by its former possessor, whether for the simple worth of it or because it played an important part in the affairs or whatever it was, that had resulted in Rutton's suicide. For his own part, Amber cared nothing for it.

Such, in short, had been his frame of mind up to eight o'clock of the previous evening. At that hour he had made a discovery which had diverted the entire trend of his thoughts.

Doggott, over a poor sailor, had been feeling ill and Amber had excused him early in the afternoon. About six o'clock he had gone to his stateroom and dressed for dinner, unattended. Absorbed in anticipations of the morrow, when first he should set foot in Calcutta and take the first step in pursuit of Sophia Farrell, he had absent-mindedly neglected to empty the pockets of his discarded clothing. At seven he had gone to dinner, leaving his stateroom door open, as was his habit—a not unusual one with first-class passengers on long voyages—and his flannels swinging from hooks in the wall. About eight, discovering his oversight through the absence of his cigarette case, he had hurried back to the stateroom to discover that he had been curiously robbed.

His watch, his keys, his small change and his sovereign purse, his silver cigarette case—all the articles, in fact, that he was accustomed to stuff into his pockets—with one exception, were where he had left them. But the leather envelope containing the portrait of Sophia Farrell was missing from the breast-pocket of his coat.

From the hour in which he had obtained it he had never but this once let it out of his personal possession. The envelope he had caused to be constructed for its safe-keeping during his enforced inaction in London. He had never once looked at it save in strict privacy, secure even from the eyes of Doggott; and the latter did not know what the leather case contained.

Thus his preconceived and self-constructed theory as to the extent of "The Enemy's" knowledge, was in an instant overthrown. "They" had seized the very first relaxation of his vigilance to rob him of that which he valued most. And in his heart he feared and believed that the incident indicated "their" intimacy not alone with his secret but with that which he shared with Colonel Farrell.

Since then his every move toward regaining the photograph had been fruitless.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, March 28, 1871.

SUICIDE.

John Hardy, a resident of the First ward and a butcher by trade, was discovered by his wife about nine o'clock last evening, suspended by the neck from one of the rafters of his wood house, dead. After ascertaining that life was extinct, she left the house for assistance, which being procured, the body was cut down.

The remains were still warm, but all efforts at resuscitation failed, and Justice Smith was summoned to hold an inquest on the body.

Nothing peculiar had been noticed in his conduct of late, excepting that last night, in the presence of his wife, he was handling the strap which a few hours afterwards terminated his existence.

Postoffice News Room Burglarized.

One of the untiring occurrences of the small hours of last night was the determined attempt on the part of a nocturnal marauder to possess himself of the pile of magazines in the show room of the King Brothers' news room at the postoffice. In order to accomplish this purpose it was necessary to break out one of the large window panes which intervened between the thief and his coveted prize.

Equal to any emergency he hesitated not to overcome the fragile obstacle, and a crash of glass broke the slumber of the occupants of a bed in the back room of the office.

Dug King, the deputy postmaster, is the nightly guardian of the premises, but for the sake of companionship and more complete protection he had prevailed upon his friend, Doll Comstock, to spend the night with him.

After an appeal to several night watchmen the man was captured and the April magazines were saved.

Board of Trade.

At the board of trade meeting last evening no definite action was taken in regard to any of the matters under consideration. Several standing committees were authorized, and the board adjourned to meet in two weeks.
